A: I would like to answer you in the following: Write a Java program to scan and display all of the movie season number. A movie season is the period of time during which a movie or TV show is shown. If the date ranges for the movie season is not given in your response, use the following three steps to calculate the start and end date. For each episode, your Java program should read the dates of the first and last episodes. The first episode will have a date of Jan 1 and the last episode will have a date of Dec 31. If a series of episodes run through the date range, there will be no gap between episodes. Calculate the date of the next season by adding or subtracting days from the start date. If the movie season continues from episode to episode, the next start date will have less than three days' difference from the end date of the previous season. If the series has been broken into two parts (Season 1 and Season 2), you will need to calculate the number of episodes in the first and second season. Use this info to calculate the number of episodes, and remember each episode should have a date, ranging from 1 to 12. This number should be the number of days from episode one to the end of the season. The range of possible dates for the season one could be any of the following: (start date + number of days in season one) to (end date - number of days in season one)

#include #include #include #include #include #include public class SeasonCalculator { public static void main(String[] args) { try { FileReader fr = new FileReader("myfile.txt"); BufferedReader br = new BufferedReader(fr); String line = br.readLine(); while (line!= null) {
