MUMBAI: The Maharashtra government has approved the setting up of a National Institute of Sports Sciences and Technology on a 19-hectare plot in the city, where authorities have been looking at constructing a sports complex as per the state's main sports policy. The sports policy was made by a panel headed by Chief Minister Devendra Fadnavis and includes representatives of the sports administration, sports bodies, sports think tanks, sports activists, and sports lobby. The sports policy-2012 was approved by the state government in September 2013. It states that 10-hectare land is required at an exact location in the city, but the land is not available, and a plot of 19 hectares will be set up instead. The decision was taken at a meeting of the state sports department on Monday night. The facility will be developed in partnership with Global Sports Foundation, a German-based organization that has a track record of developing sports complexes in developing countries. The foundation will provide the land, while the centre will be fully developed and managed by the government-run Sports Authority of Maharashtra, the Fadnavis government has decided to form the centre in partnership with GSF to set up a world-class sports complex in the state. "The project, which will be initiated by September, will be developed and managed by the state government. Global Sports Foundation will not engage in any other business, other than providing the land to us," said Shashikant Tripathi, Mumbai divisional commissioner, sports. In 2014, GSF acquired a piece of land along the Oshiwara-Ghatkopar Link Road, near Oshiwara station. The team and the land were acquired by the foundation with finance from Tata Trusts. The foundation also runs two sports complexes and a hydropower plant in Bhutan, a country that has achieved sustainable development. "The state will set up an institute that will promote not only sports activities but also sports sciences and sports. We hope this will
