

The Lands Between is a world where the thin line between life and death can never be stretched too thin, where the power of death and survival lies. In order to survive in this land, Elden characters have two sets of weapons, five classes, and an endless number of combinations. When creating your own class, try your best to use skills that are appropriate for your character's type. ABOUT NEXON GAMES AMERICA INC.: Nexon Inc. Wednesday, November 05, 2006 I also just read about Lutte Contre Le Cancer, a French organization that is trying to get doctors to consider genetic tests to identify and warn people about the cancer-causing effects of sun exposure. Nothing is happening in the U.S. yet, but there is hope. This is, of course, an obvious problem for people of European ancestry who are genetically predisposed to skin cancer. I just can't imagine how this could affect Asian-Americans though. You do have a lot of melanin, and you're lucky enough to have fair skin, so you don't need to be worried. Don't make the mistake of thinking that the answer is to just avoid sun exposure, because we don't know that you actually need to avoid it. All of these tests are research tools, and not all of them are developed to be used by doctors and nurses. But there is evidence that they can help people identify sun exposure that triggers skin cancer. Sunscreen creams do prevent melanoma, as they should. And I should also add that information about sun exposure is important for all of us, not just people with dark skin. We're exposed to the sun all the time, even in the winter. And we all have different levels of skin melanin, just as we have different hair and eye colors. So, until there is scientific evidence to prove that we can't screen for sun exposure, we should all be getting tested. It's
