initial evaluation of lung nodules. The evaluation of lung nodules has been revolutionized by the advent of high-resolution CT (HRCT). This article reviews the current status of various aspects of HRCT. With meticulous attention to detail and high levels of operator experience, HRCT can be used to detect and characterize lesions, determine the extent and progression of disease, document the surgical margins in patients undergoing surgery, detect and characterize postoperative residual disease, and aid in the staging of patients at the time of initial presentation or after salvage therapy. HRCT has also become a primary tool for localizing pulmonary abnormalities in patients with enlarged mediastinal nodes. Q: How to provide base url or origin for passportjs in docker container In my app I want to be able to use passport-js to authenticate a user. The project is setup with an docker compose file. I see that passport provides a base url for issuing the requests like so: passport.use(new JWTSignatureStrategy({ jwtFromRequest: function(req, token, xssFinds, config) { var tokenWithoutTimestamp = token.replace(/[\.\-\+]\d+$/, ""); if (typeof config.jwtFromRequest === 'function') { return config.jwtFromRequest(req, tokenWithoutTimestamp, config); } return tokenWithoutTimestamp; } }, { jwtFromHeader: function(req, token, xssFinds, config) { var tokenWithoutTimestamp = token.replace(/[\.\-\+]\d+$/, ""); if (typeof config.jwtFromHeader === 'function') { return config.jwtFromHeader(req, tokenWithoutTimestamp, config); } return tokenWithoutTimestamp; } 570a42141b
